SUBJECT: Comments on Proposed Military Briefings at Defense Schools

I. Substantive Briefings

These should be given as needed. Present arrangement ideal. Such briefings are generally given by Mr. Dulles, Gen. Cabell or Mr. Amory. If Mr. Amory needs a substitute, he usually sends Sherman Kent.

II. Briefings on CIA Mission, Functions, and Organization (including both DDI and DDP, DDP coverage to include types of operations and sanitized examples of each)

1. Lyman Kirkpatrick (somewhat weak on the DDI side, perhaps by choice. Good briefer, has the rank, and will not "play cozy" with audience.)

2. [redacted] (Professional briefers. Good balance between DDI and DDP. No rank. Does not have experience in depth of DDP, but knowledge of DDP more than sufficient if terms of reference indicate conceptual and organizational presentation, sprinkled with good operational examples. Insufficient knowledge if what is called for is along "CIA in the Field" lines, calling for field experience; or if what is called for is extensive coverage of specialized topics such as "War Planning," "UW," etc. Where protocol indicates ranking official, can be used in combination with such official--giving basic data, leaving Mr. Amory, for example, to elaborate and to answer questions.)

III. Production of National Intelligence (NSC-USIB Agencies-DDI)

1. Robert Amory
 2. Sherman Kent

3.
